Note Adobe Lightroom can be purchased as a standalone program. It's the default picture-editing program for most Mac computers, too. Lightroom has a simplified version of a layer-based editing system that enables you to make changes to multiple images all at once. It enables you to view two or more images at a time, and let you spot-edit (make changes to) photos in a much simpler manner than Photoshop, Elements, or other programs (see Figure 2-15). It makes colors more accurate, removes backgrounds, adds effects, and keeps your original image in case something goes wrong. The full version of Lightroom comes with libraries of free images you can choose from,

Ask HN: Bulk comments for a site? - mratzloff I know that there are a few comments sites out there, and they allow one to leave a "comment" that is not sent directly to the site but rather sent to an email address. Does anyone know of a site that allows you to leave a comment that goes to an email address and others are notified of the comment? I'd imagine there is a business in there somewhere. ===== mratzloff I discovered , and it looks like there is some interest in the comments there. ----- namanyayg Wouldn't that violate everyone's email privacy? ~~~ curt I don't know much about the issue but I would think it would be an easy enough "moderation" problem. ----- jhancock I would suggest you do your own search on this. There are probably other ways than those I suggest. For my (non-free software) comment aggregator, I use the following: 1\ A cron task runs weekly. 2\ Each site to be aggregated is a database record with at least the site, and possibly discussion lists, newsgroups, and websites to follow. 3\ Each record has a hidden key I use in the cron task. The cron task loads that key into the record, and then hooks into an already existing external script which grabs the comments and puts them in the record. The cron task then sends email to the site administrators for review, and then email to me. I recently decided to go with the external script and do the initial aggregation on my own at some point. I may then run some aggregators to post to the site(s) later. However, my aggregate works in any sequence. I like this method as it lets me aggregate the comments for various sites as needed, but the cron task is always running. Q: How to get a subarray from a QueryList In my rails app (Rails 3.0.3) I have created a query that returns the following values. @myArray = [1,2,3] @myArray.each_with_index do |a, i| @mySubArray

It's not that the economy is in bad shape, it's that our leaders are in bad shape, and they're making it worse. For example, the current administration and the Republicans in Congress have refused to adequately fund the very important research program that would allow us to extend human lifespans. The government is planning to cut the funds for this essential program down to almost nothing this coming year. This is a political decision. I know it's wrong, and I'm asking you to help me protest it. Please sign in at the bottom of this page to help me persuade the government to keep funding these "eugenics projects" that will allow us to slow the rate of human aging, and extend human lifespans as much as 50 years. Note: There is actually quite a lot of research that aims to extend human lifespans. The 20+ year-old research by Dolly the sheep was the most successful. Also, remember that in the early 20th Century many people were confused about what causes aging and mortality; they believed it was due to some sort of "germ", and that "germs" might be bred out of people in the future. Yes, this was a bit of a fraud. However, in the 1940s, the germ hypothesis was replaced by the atomic hypothesis, and everyone has been assuming this is true ever since. Now the germ hypothesis has been debunked, but we still use the same outdated ideas. Think about it - if you knew that aging was due to your nuclear DNA, wouldn't you encourage your nuclear DNA to be bred out? The government has decided not to invest in this research because the government has decided that people are too old to live. Plus, they want to cut taxes and take care of "the poor". It's the Republicans in Congress who want to do this because they think that if we can extend human lifespans the rich will outlive the poor and the Republicans in Congress will be richer than the Democrats. If we want more young people, we need to stop and think about what's making them old. The answer is that we age because it's "inevitable". [If you don't believe that, just try to live forever.] However, aging is a skill that we can learn to master. In fact, without aging we would die before long because our bodies would be worn out after a few years. So aging is really just a way to keep life healthier and longer, and
