Learning Through Play Crawford Brickman Learning Through Play, the LTP Program, is a nationally recognized program of education for infants, toddlers and their parents. The LTP program is most effective in the first three years of life. We believe that the foundation of a child's life is learned through play. Through small group play experiences, infants and toddlers learn skills that are necessary to develop into healthy, happy and confident children and adults. Our program is a combination of methods from well researched, accepted theories and developmental practices. Our teachers and facilitators encourage children to play through active, exploratory play, while developing individual differences in social and physical abilities. Our team of certified, trained and experienced teachers, facilitators, clinicians and administrators work in groups of four, with each infant or toddler in the group. The teacher is a facilitator, working in a supportive role and sharing activities and resources with their fellow teacher and members. In addition to small group play, the three-year program includes parent learning activities, which include videos, brochures, booklets and activity sheets, a monthly newsletter and parent evening meetings, in which we discuss a variety of topics. Brickman Playworks preschool, a division of Crawford Brickman Learning Through Play, is run by our in-house administrative team. It has childcare spaces for children from 12 months to age four and is a highly-integrated part of our LTP program. The Crawford Brickman Learning Through Play Program offers parents the following benefits: 268 N.W.2d 625 (1978) Keith M. BROWN, Appellant, v. Sugar-sensitive mechanosensory neurons in Aplysia californica have membrane potential and action potential thresholds close to the seawater ion concentration. Mechanosensory neurons were recorded extracellularly from the abdominal ganglion of Aplysia californica using a suction electrode. Seven types of sensory cells, two dynamic mechanoreceptors and five static mechanoreceptors were characterized using the sucrose agar bath as a mechanical stimulus. The excitatory responses of the sensory neurons were evoked by brief (20 ms) mechanical stimulation of the dendritic tufts of the sensory cells. The mechanosensory cells in Aplysia respond to 1 M sucrose/0.5 M NaCl, but not to 0.5 M sucrose/0.5 M NaCl. The mechanosensory cells include three pairs of sensory receptors characterized by the positions of their dendritic tufts. The three pairs of sensory cells have membrane potential and action potential thresholds close to the seawater ion concentration. The threshold pressure of the dynamic receptors has an electrical counterpart--the threshold voltage (V_t). The V_t is a function of the intensity of mechanical stimulation of the dendritic tufts. The dynamic receptors have a lower V_t than do the static receptors. The three pairs of sensory cells differ in their physiological properties. Responses of the sensory cells were enhanced by sucrose (fructose) agar and reduced by high calcium ionic concentration. L.B.2d 1060, 1061. Although the court in its analysis was referring to the sale of a new contract it is obvious that the same rules apply in a sale of old or used equipment. Moreover, plaintiff's theory that the contract is a new contract is contradicted by the fact that the contract does not contain a specific provision which would give it the status of a new and separate contract. That is, the contract is one whereby the plaintiff purchased certain equipment from the defendant and agreed to pay the defendant for such equipment by means of a time payment contract. It is not necessary in order to dispose of the case, however, for us to decide whether a sale of the goods in question by defendant to the plaintiff was a sale of goods or whether the transaction was a sale of a service or whether it was both a service and a sale of goods. An examination of the contract discloses that the seller or dealer was to deliver the three-truck contract equipment, tank
